A local specialty beer store was recently recognized for its beer selection.

KING 5 Evening Magazine announced that 99 Bottles, located at the Federal Way Crossings at South 348th Street and Pacific Highway South, has the 4th Best Beer Selection for 2008 in Western Washington. The ranking was the result of a competition, facilitated by CityVoter, in which people nominated, voted and commented online about their choice for best beer selection. For more information, visit www.king5.com/best.

99 Bottles stocks more than 900 different labels of beer, from American craft and macrobreweries, 20 Washington state microbreweries, and around the world, including Belgium, England, Germany and more than 40 other countries.

Keeping the beer as fresh as possible is a focus at the store, said Craig Adamowski, who co-owns the store with his spouse, Tiffany Adamowski. Light, temperature and shelf life are controlled to help prevent stale beer, he explained.

The couple created the beer store, which they have independently owned and operated for two years.
